DID YOU KNOW ?

Dajarra is an outback town which was once the largest cattle trucking depot in the world, processing thousands of head of cattle from as far away as Western Australia. The ruins of the holding yards bear witness to its heyday. It is now a quiet laid back town with a rich aboriginal heritage.

Dajarra is located between Mt Isa and Boulia, approximately 150 kms from both towns.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM AROUND

PROPERTY

House prices in Australia's regional towns are poised to rise as the coronavirus pandemic prompts city dwellers to consider a lifestyle change.

TRAVEL

In the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic, Australians are unlikely to be able to visit popular destinations which are considered to have poorly or inadequately managed the spread of the coronavirus, according to leading travel health experts.

Mining towns have also recorded strong house price rises on the anticipation of jobseekers moving there.
